IOBSA APPOINTS A NEW CEO

The Institute of Bankers in South Africa NPC (IOBSA) is pleased to announce the appointment of Garth Keshwar as Chief Executive Officer (CEO) with effect from 1 October 2023.

Mr Keshwar is a seasoned banker having started his banking career in 2010 with ABSA up until his most recent position of Product Portfolio Lead/Head at FNB.

He has developed key skills through his years of being in the financial industry. A few of these being strategic planning, performance management, stakeholder engagement & business development.

Mr Keshwar has a long list of qualifications. This includes a Bachelor of Commerce and an Honors in Business Management from the University of the Free State.

“We are incredibly proud to have been able to appoint someone of Mr Keshwar’s calibre. He has diverse experience in the banking sector, which will undoubtedly put him in good stead to strengthen and grow the IOBSA,” said Jill Dyers, Chairman of the IOBSA.

Mr Keshwar is equally excited to join the IOBSA. “I cannot wait to see the IOBSA re-ignite the flame of banking knowledge and become a successful and sought-after organisation that is at the heart of plugging the skills gap, and producing professionals who possess the skills needed in a fast-evolving fourth industrial revolution banking sector,” he said.
